

Program Information

College:	Radow College of Humanities and Social Sciences
Department:	Interdisciplinary Studies
Program:	American Studies, MA

Program Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this degree from KSU, students will be able to:

- Describe how key values and social practices associated with American life have evolved in distinct historical periods.
- Explain the history and cultural productions of the United States in a broader context by applying transnational, international, hemispheric, and/or global frameworks of analysis.
- Analyze relationships between cultural products and social values.
- Recognize, explain, and /or examine American Studies as a field, including its historical background as well as current and emerging issues.
- Combine diverse methods to study American cultural products and practices.
- Apply insights from multiple cultural experiences and perspectives and analyze hierarchies that shape society.
- Communicate an effective analysis of American culture in both written and oral form.