

Program Information

College:	Norman J. Radow College of Humanities and Social Sciences
Department:	Interdisciplinary Studies – Undergraduate
Program:	Leadership Studies, Minor

Program Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this degree from KSU, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate information literacy, critical thinking, critical self-reflection, and collaboration skills.
2. Critically examine and apply historical and contemporary concepts, theories, and models of leadership.
3. Effectively and appropriately engage across differences by critically examining how leadership is related to self, other, and contexts.
4. Critically examine and apply key modes of inquiry used in the discipline of Leadership Studies.
5. Discern between leaders and the practice of leadership.
6. Articulate one's own philosophy of leadership grounded in one or more leadership theories they learned throughout the program.